1,000 Years Of Peace

“The devil is bound, and we are now in the millennium,” someone claimed.

“If the devil is bound,” a minister replied, “he must be tied with a rubber chain that stretches from Paris to Bombay and from Washington, D.C., to the Kremlin.”

We need only to look at what is happening about us to know that the devil has never been more active than he is today. Never have crime and sin been more rampant.

However, there is coming a time when the devil’s activities will be justly restricted. He will be unable to tempt, torment, or destroy any of God’s children. This is the day for which the whole world has longed. There will be perfect peace and happiness in the universe. The devil will be bound.

This period of one thousand years is called the millennium. This term is not found in the Bible. It comes from two Latin words, “mille” and “annus,” and means 1,000 years. The phrase “1,000 years” is found six times in Revelation,

Many ideas about what is to occur during the millennium have been advanced. Some think of it as a thousand years of peace. However, we do not need to wonder; the Bible explains the period—its beginning, its purpose, and its end.

Before you begin the study of the questions in this lesson, read the entire twentieth chapter of Revelation.

Friend, where will you be at the end of the millennium? With Christ and the saved in the city, or with the wicked outside? By accepting Him now, you can make reservations for the future. Won't you decide today? Tomorrow may be too late. What is your response?

I have already made this decision.

I wish to make my reservation for the new earth today.
